Integrating Woman Leaders, Inc. Partners with The Leadership Institute-Women with Purpose to Provide Leadership Development Opportunities for Women

Indianapolis, IN – September 19, 2011 – To help all organizations (not-for-profit and corporate organizations) thrive with an abundance of high performing and successful female leaders, Integrating Woman Leaders, Inc. (IWL) and The Leadership Institute-WWP (The LI) are joining in partnership to provide soft skill leadership development resources to help all women reach their potential.

IWL Founder & President, Jennifer Browning Holmes, states, “We believe this partnership allows us to broaden our reach to support women’s professional development needs from college to the executive level of an organization.”

Together, IWL and The LI will provide leadership development resources through a variety of service offerings. These offerings will include: comprehensive assessments, instructor-led training, train the trainer programs, personalized executive coaching, online training, webinar trainings and customized curriculum development.

Executive Director of The LI, Erin Correa, states, “This partnership allows The LI and IWL to increase the breadth and depth of service offerings our organizations provide. There is incredible synergy between our organizations and partnering to provide enhanced resources just makes sense.”

Both IWL and The LI have extensive experience in conducting needs analysis projects to determine learning gaps within organizations. As a result of this research, both organizations are able to successfully create customized curriculum plans and supporting programs to help organizations reach their goals for their female leaders. As stated in the McKinsey & Company report, Women Matter, “Companies where women are most strongly represented at board or top-management level are also the companies that perform best.” The partnership between IWL and The LI will help organizations ensure they are appropriately growing their female leaders so they can serve in top leadership roles, assisting the organization in attaining higher levels of success!
