The Integrating Woman Leaders Foundation Annual Conference Sells out in Record Time and Plans for Future Growth

INDIANAPOLIS (July 20, 2016)- The 7th annual Integrating Woman Leaders Foundation (IWL Foundation) Women's Leadership Conference on August 23, 2016 sold out over a month ahead of schedule. It's third sell out in a row, the conference attracts 550 women and men every year and is designed to propel women to the next stage of life and career through empowerment, support and connections.

"It's no surprise to see the registrations flying in because, as we know, the need to support female leaders is great," said Maggie Anderson Phelps, executive director of IWL Foundation. "The more exciting and impressive part of this is - with this amount of interest and the growing support of our sponsors, it's clear that leading Indiana companies are seeing the value in this and investing in people development."

This year the conference theme is Readiness, Resilience, Results and features well renowned speakers including Ann Murtlow, United Way; Dr. Mikki Hebl, Rice University; and Coach Darleen Santore as the keynote speakers. Event sponsors include Eli Lilly and Company, Butler University, Ice Miller, LLP, IUPUI, Roche Diagnostics, and Anthem.

Momentum from the March 2016 Louisville leadership conference has reinforced IWL Foundation's belief that the 7th Annual IWL Leadership Conference could be the best yet. The Louisville leadership conference attendees had a 99% personal experience rating of above average or excellent. With the stellar results, IWL Foundation is confident the Indianapolis leadership conference will bring similar results.

Through these successes, IWL Foundation has quickly become one of the leading women's professional development organizations in the area and continues to grow nationally with plans to bring the conference to at least three more cities by 2020.
